■ RESEARCH—A study reported in Journal of Child Psychology and Psychiatry (July 2006) found that children with autism spectrum disorders (ASDs) have a higher risk of developing depression than children without ASDs. The study, which was conducted by researchers at the University of Cambridge, involved 100 children with ASDs and 100 children without ASDs. The children were assessed for signs of depression using a standardized questionnaire. The results showed that children with ASDs were more likely to exhibit symptoms of depression than children without ASDs.

The high level of  $\text{H}_2\text{O}_2$  in the water column was not observed in the other two cruises. This may be due to the fact that the water column was more turbulent during the first cruise, which could have led to the formation of  $\text{H}_2\text{O}_2$  in the water column.

Dengue epidemic in Asia seen

Only RP bucking outbreak trend with fewer deaths

Manila, Sept. 22 (AP) — A dengue epidemic is spreading across Asia, with the Philippines bucking the trend by reporting fewer deaths than other countries, according to a report by the World Health Organization.

The WHO report, released last week, says that the number of dengue cases in the Philippines has decreased by 10 percent since last year. This is a significant improvement, as the country has historically had one of the highest rates of dengue deaths in the region.

The report also notes that the Philippines has implemented effective control measures, such as the use of larvicides and the distribution of bed nets, which have helped to reduce the number of deaths.

However, the WHO warns that the epidemic is still a threat, and that the Philippines must continue to monitor the situation closely. The report also notes that the Philippines has a high rate of dengue cases, but that the number of deaths has decreased significantly since last year.

Figure 1 consists of two panels, A and B, each showing a line graph of bacterial concentration (log CFU/g) versus time (h) for E. coli O157:H7. Panel A shows growth on TSA medium, and Panel B shows growth on TSB medium. Both panels compare growth at 100% relative humidity (RH) with growth at lower RH levels (20%, 40%, 60%, 80%, and 90%). In both panels, the 100% RH condition shows the highest bacterial concentration, reaching approximately 10 log CFU/g by 24 hours. The other RH conditions show lower concentrations, with 20% RH showing the lowest concentration, remaining below 1 log CFU/g throughout the 24-hour period.

The hair loss industry is a multi-billion dollar industry. It is estimated that over 50 million people in the United States are affected by hair loss. This is a major problem for many people, as it can affect their self-esteem and their ability to find a partner.

There are many different treatments for hair loss, but not all of them are effective. Some treatments can be expensive and some can have side effects. It is important to consult with a doctor before starting any treatment.

Dr. S. S. S. S. is a leading expert in the field of hair loss. He has developed a new treatment that is safe and effective. This treatment can help people with hair loss to grow back their hair.
